THE DAILY NEWS.

FRIDAY, JULY 5, 1878.

The Indianapolis News has the largest circulation of any daily paper in Indiana.

COUNTY expenses must be reduced.

MR. TILDEN has gone to Europe again. Possibly this will give a brief rest on the title question.

SUMMER resorts at home give promise of suffering this season. Last Saturday 600 people sailed from New York, while for weeks past an average of 300 or 400 have crowded the steamers on Thursdays and Saturdays.

AND on this point we desire to say the people of Indiana have not, up to this time, cast a vote signifying their endorsement of "salary-grabbing." [Journal.]

And it is to be hoped they will not. But the Journal, while denouncing Voorhees and Manson, still fails to say anything about J. Peter Cleaver Shanks, who is a republican candidate for joint representative for Jay and Delaware counties.

CONGRESSMAN SCHLEICHER, of Texas, talked with Secretary Evans about the government invading Mexico if the marauding did not cease, and the secretary asked what would be the sentiment of congress in so extreme an action. To this Schleicher replied:

The great trouble with congressmen is that they are selfishly indifferent to such matters. The average congressman is too selfish in every way, and thinks only of self-aggrandizement. They seem to be dead to all feeling of national pride, and pay little attention to the honor of the nation at large.

THE effect of the Greenley pardon is already seen in the conduct of the negro who was murdered on Wednesday night. He was jealous of another negro. He recognized no right of the woman he wanted to choose any one but himself. He threatened her with death if she did not marry him, and to enforce his threat reminded her of the Greenley murder. The thought he had no doubt been the thought of many others. They saw that the penalty fixed was not inflicted, and gathered from that the belief that crime might be comparatively safe for them. If Greenley had been hung it would have taught a different lesson.

GOV. WILLIAMS has pardoned William J. Abrams, the accomplice of Mrs. Clem, who was sentenced to the penitentiary for life nine years ago. What Gov. Williams's motive was in releasing this red-handed murderer is not vouchsafed. It shows, however, the inadequacy of life sentences for murder. Here was a man who was convicted beyond all doubt. His guilt was incontestable. Yet as the memory of his crime becomes dim and the record of good behavior grows, each governor is asked to grant a pardon. Statistics showed a few years since that in Massachusetts the average term really served on life sentences was between seven and eight years, and it probably is no greater in this state. The only reason given why he should be pardoned is that Mrs. Clem has got free, as if because one criminal escaped another had a right to liberty.

ON THE heels of the shivering disgust that the misplaced weather of June brought, the "heated term" has followed in hot pursuit. It has taken the country. For a week the fervent heat has hung over the land, mellowing the ripening grain and capping the perfect growth of spring with as glorious a harvest as ever blessed a people. In the country the heated term means "work." In the town it means "play." It is vacation time; the time when the weary worker of the city, who has toiled while the farmer rested, seeks to the down in green pastures to be led beside the still waters, to restore his body if not his soul. He listens with envy to the voice of Tennyson's "Brook,"

I come from granite of cool and fern,
I make a sudden fall,
And sparkle out among the ferns,
To tinkle down a valley.

And with Jeremiah exclaims, "Oh that my head were waters; oh that I had in the wilderness a lodging place!" It is the time when "the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low." It is the time when man works least and nature most. A time between times, without calculation or care.

Money Must Have Value.

Money is any product which by common consent has a general purchasing power. When potatoes are exchanged for shoes each has a specific power of purchasing the other; but such exchanges are necessarily limited, because of the difficulty of finding parties and products for such specific transactions. But by the use of money each may be converted into a form which will not only purchase the other, but will also purchase all other products which the owner may wish to dispose of. Money makes no alteration in the laws of value or in the principles of exchange. It only interposes a third term of general power, between two terms of specific power. If, in a primitive state of society, everybody is willing to take sheep in exchange for other products, then sheep become money, and exchanges are reckoned in sheep. It is much more convenient to sell a crop of corn for money, and exchange this money for shoes, sugar and plows than to exchange portions of the corn for each of the articles named. Money is more safely kept, more easily divided and portable than the bulk of salable products, and hence cheapens and multiplies commercial transactions.

A given value in the form of money is more available for general purchasing than in other forms, and hence it is the product and especial implement of commerce. Without it exchanges would be slow and cumbersome, and civilization hampered and tardy. It is the common measure and medium of exchanges, and the most important labor-saving machine ever invented. It is a store house of past labor, brings together the buyers and sellers of distant regions, and is a most important instrument of production. Being a commodity of value, it differs from others in this, that it will purchase all sorts of service, while they will only purchase some sort of service.

When potatoes and nails are for sale they will purchase each other, if the owners respectively happen to want such articles; but each may be sold for money, and this expended for any other desired article. But if this common medium has no value, it is not a medium, is not money, can not be made available in exchanges. Money therefore must have value, so as to measure and be measured by other things of value; and without this it can have no existence. Whether it consists of living things like sheep, or metallic coins like dollars, or paper evidences of debts like bank notes, it must bear value or it can not be money; for only values can measure and exchange values. Strike out the notion of value, and money ceases to exist, can no longer perform its functions, and all its advantages are lost to civilization.

Enforce the Law.

There is a city ordinance fifteen years old which reads:

Any person who shall throw or fire any squib, cracker, rocket or fireworks, or any ball set on fire in said city, shall, on conviction of such offense before said mayor, be fined in any sum not exceeding ten dollars; and any person who shall sell any squib, cracker, rocket or fireworks, or any ball set on fire in said city, shall, on conviction thereof before the mayor, be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

The penalty for the participation in this dangerous practice seems to have been not sufficiently severe, for three years later, in 1868, it was reinforced by another ordinance which reads:

Be it ordained by the common council of the city of Indianapolis, That it shall be unlawful to fire or assist in firing any cannon, and any person who shall sell any squib, cracker, rocket or fireworks, or any ball set on fire in said city, shall, on conviction thereof before the mayor, be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

Yesterday twelve thousand dollars worth of property was destroyed by fire, presumably as a consequence of a violation of the law of the city above quoted. Whether it was or not, that law was aspenly disregarded as if it had been a proclamation of the king of Dahomey. For days before the Fourth fireworks were sold to minors, and all that day they were shot into the face of the law, and the offense is as great whether they burned buildings or not. There was no proclamation concerning this law and not the slightest effort so far as we are aware, to enforce it; the dereliction being more manifest from a resolution by the board of aldermen that the law should be enforced. It is the neglect of the law as law that The News speaks against. The sworn executors of the law do not enforce it unless especially bolstered up to it, and the people regard it with little more emotion than if it were a part of the pandects. A careful political student felt moved to say in a public address last week:

> It was by the voice of the people that the sin of the Roman tribunes fell; and it is by the popular contempt for law to-day, in the most enlightened government in the world, that our free institutions, the noblest offering of Christian civilization to the galaxy of nations, is more gravely imperiled than when rebellion besieged the capital and summoned a million men to sacrifice.

This is not sophomoric sentiment, it is grave truth, and the sources of this contempt for law which is abroad in the land to-day, like the sources of a great river, flow from every city, town and hamlet. Its springs are the disregard manifested on every side for ordinances and acts that are irksome or inconvenient in their scope, until it has come to be that no law answers the end of its being unless "public sentiment" wills it; so public sentiment violates or keeps a law as it sees fit. Doubtless the sentiment of the man whose house was burned yesterday is strongly in favor of enforcing the firecracker act, but general public sentiment was not in favor of it and it was disregarded. There is grave danger in this condition, and as individuals and as a community and nation we will suffer severely for it. We can not too soon begin to teach respect for the law by enforcing it, not because it may meet public opinion but because it is law.

CURRENT COMMENT.

If Apollo should "strike the loud lyre" at Washington, Potter's committee could silence him in five minutes with some of their productions.

Now that denial has come to be the fashion in Louisiana affairs, we shall probably have one which will declare the visiting statesmen didn't perform various light fantastic evolutions in the many dances at the quadrone ball.

Now that Weber declares he has burned the Sherman letter, the Secretary might acquit Mrs. Jenks of the great transgression. The grand jury at Chicago have recommended compulsory education as a preventive of crime.

The Smithsonian institute professors have discovered in Virginia, about fifty miles south of Richmond, quarries of soapstone, or steatite, which appear to have been worked by the aboriginal inhabitants of the continent. The examinations which have thus far been made prove that the quarries were abandoned at least four hundred years ago.

In 11 months the excess of our exports over imports was $246,000,000, more than one-third of the whole.

Minnesota expects to turn out from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, and Kansas about 45,000,000 bushels.

Steadily and stealthily the contempt for law has spread through partisan madness and the tolerance of our better citizenship, until it has invaded the most sacred authority of the republic. The test has been made, and the people have passively assented, and crime has increased, and the force of the leaders of both parties for future struggle over presidential titles and public spoils. If any party had declared such a purpose it would to-day be impotent as the tempest which sweeps over our territory, but the evil comes as the voiceless trickling streams and the silent dews and the winter frosts and the summer suns, which wear away the seasons rocks of her power, and left her widowed in the ruins of her grandeur. It was by the vices of the people that the last of the Roman republic fell, and it is by the popular contempt for law to-day in the most enlightened government of the world, that our free institutions, the noblest offering of Christian civilization to the galaxy of nations, is more gravely imperiled than when rebellion besieged the capital and summoned a million men to sacrifice. [McClure.]

THE GREAT RACE.

Ten Broeck and Molly McCarthy—The former distances his rival—Both animals of the top.

In Louisville yesterday it is estimated 30,000 people were at the races. In the first race Dan M. beat Harkaway easy. Time 2:18. The race was a mile and three-quarter dash. The second race, sweepstakes, for two year olds resulted as follows: Good Night first, Kenton second, Champlain third. Time 1:20. The two races already run had shown the track to be not less than five seconds slow, and it was in that peculiar condition most trying to runners, being without elasticity and executing a constant pull and strain.

At four o'clock the great race of the day between Ten Broeck and Molly McCarthy was run. The latter was the favorite. Her mare seemed to be in perfect form. Her almost perfect movement excited the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and the California delegation, in the center of which sat the California belle, Miss Molly McCarthy, went fairly into raptures.

Ten Broeck came upon the course surrounded by a score or more of guards. The horse, too, was in the pink of condition, never having looked better or given evidence of finer or more skillful training. Both racers were full of animal spirits, and eager for the contest. At the signal both horses started and got away at the first start of the starter's whistle. Ten Broeck had the outside of the track, and the mare being on the inside ran to the front from the start. At the half mile did not change their position, and as they moved onward the 30,000 spectators were held in perfect silence. Between the half and three-quarter mile the mare got her nose ahead, and a great cheer went up, and then as they came past the string and she again appeared in the front, another cheer was heard. The mare was being driven hard and Walker urged him more and more. In the second mile Molly McCarthy was running with such ease, and Ten Broeck labored so hard, that the Kentucky wavered by the thousands, and the certainty of the Californian winning produced a dead silence. At the half past of the second mile, Walker urged Ten Broeck quite hard, and Hower permitted him to come up side by side. A Kentucky yell, raised for miles, rent the air. So they ran past the three-quarter stake, and coming into the stretch Molly brushed ahead again, passing the grand stand half a length in the lead. "She will win" was heard in all directions, and more confident grew the cry as her easy movement continued. At the half past of the second mile, Walker urged Ten Broeck quite hard, and Hower permitted him to come up side by side. A Kentucky yell, raised for miles, rent the air. The old seminary reunion the 17th inst. will take the form of a basket picnic.

Happy are they who had return tickets from Louisville. About seven eighths of the people who went down from here bet on the mare. Twenty-one car loads went down from Indianapolis.

In the game of base ball at Cincinnati yesterday McCormick pitched and Clappand Flint caught. The game was lost by Flint, who made two errors, letting in many runs. The score was 5 to 3.

Ed. Baugh, who was taken to Terre Haute last Monday by policeman Frazier, of that city, for burglary, broke jail in time to enjoy the Fourth. The authorities do not seem to be able to hold that boy.

Engine 40 on the Indianapolis, Cincinnati & Lafayette railroad hauling the day train from Cincinnati to Lafayette, yesterday, was the most elaborately decorated machine that came into the union depot.

The three-cent-a-glass beer men have finally triumphed, and the legend "beer 3c a glass, 2 for 5c," may be seen all over town. A reduction of $1.50 in the price of a barrel will be made by the brewers.

Charles Scherer and a companion named Lang were celebrating the Fourth yesterday, and when near the city hall Lang's pistol went off and landed a bullet in Scherer's leg, making a bad wound.

Eli Thompson, while city marshal, made a collection of about 200 pieces of counterfeit money, which he arranged in a case and put in his lumber yard office. Yesterday morning the office was broken into by thieves, and the entire collection stolen.

The vigilant police captured John W. Johnson at the court house, yesterday, for hitting his horse to a jump, post while he was procuring a marriage license. He had run away from Illinois to commit matrimony and the first engagement he had was with the mayor—$6.40.

Installations of officers.
Gerrit Smith Lodge No. 250, G. U. O. F., installed their officers last night. The following is a list of the officers installed: Archib Greathouse, P. U. F.; Henry More, U. F.; Samuel Heron, P. U. G.; William T. Floyd, U. G.; Willie Lattimore, V. G.; Chas. B. Taylor, E. S.; and George Sanders, G. G. The lodge gave a dance last night, which was very largely attended.

Marion Lodge No. 1, Knights of Pythias installed the following officers last Wednesday night: D. G. C. Charles S. May, conducting the ceremonies; C. C. Joseph R. Duhbs, P. C.; James A. Johnson, V. C.; Wm. C. Tarkenton, P. C.; John B. West, M. of E.; M. A. Lockwood, I. G.; J. M. Heilcock, O. G. E. S. Cruell.

Centennial lodge I. O. O. F. will publicly install officers to-night at Stewart's block corner of Illinois and Seventh streets.

Bold Burglars.
About 4 o'clock p. m. yesterday, two young men with hankies tied over their faces, and supposed to be negroes, broke into the residence of Samuel P. Harrington, corner of Broadway and Eighth streets, and secured some silverware. Mr. Albro met them and asked what they were doing there, when they dropped a silver caster and ran for the woods. S. E. Kierulff tried to stop them, presenting a revolver, but failed. A half dozen policemen joined in the chase, but the thieves made good their escape, the officers losing track of them in the Fall creek bottom.

THE FOURTH.

Its Observance in Indianapolis and Vicinity—A Quiet Day Generally.

It was regular fourth of July weather yesterday, blaring, seething hot, and people were saved from utter prostration only by a stiff breeze which occasionally swept down from the north. The city was well lighted, and the small boy, who managed to evade the ordinance against the exploding of fire crackers and other noise-producing agents, and a din was kept up by them from early morn till dewy eve had long been a thing of the past. There was an improvement in this respect, however; for so much give thanks.

Lawrence lodge, I. O. O. F., organized an old-fashioned celebration, which was held in O. V. Voorhis's grove north of that place. The lodge formed in procession about nine o'clock and marched out to the grove, which was then well filled with people from the neighborhood. Ben Green's band was on hand and made sweet music for the occasion. The program of exercises, carried out under the direction of Mr. Smart, included the singing of the national ode by the lodge, a welcome address by Mr. McVey, the reading of the proclamation of the independence by Mr. Lancaster, and an address by William Wallace, Esq., of this city. Mr. J. W. McQuiddy, P. G. M., who was present, was called out, and made a short address. By this time the crowd was ready for the fireworks, and was reinforced by a large delegation from the city, who went out on the moon train, felt to and demolished a vast array of etables prepared by the female relatives of the members of the lodge. The afternoon was given over to social amusements, in which the may dance held a prominent place. The occasion was a pleasant one throughout, and quite a success.

A celebration somewhat similar in character was held by the Millersville and Sugar Grove Sunday schools and their friends in Ringer's woods, near Millersville. Speeches were made by William Fletcher, Rev. J. C. Fletcher, J. H. Y. Smith, W. H. Stipp and J. H. Laird. W. W. Foster read the declaration of independence. There was no entertainment of any kind provided at either the Exposition grounds or the Southern park save beer and dancing. The result was a continual racket and long sustained quarreling, with no very serious results. A dozen or fifteen arrests were made at the Southern park, mostly for disorderly conduct.

Gerit Smith and Abraham Lincoln lodges G. U. O. F. (colored), held a large picnic at Greencastle. Elder Jones, of Coke chapel, this city, delivered the oration of the day, which was spoken very highly. James T. Hill also delivered an Odd Fellows address. About a thousand persons were in appearance, and the day passed off pleasantly.

The numerous picnics, public and private, eventuated as expected, and by far the largest part of the population spent the day in attendance upon these or by staying quietly at home. So far as reported the casualties are few and not as serious as nature. P. P. Diehl & Co. display of fireworks at the base ball park closed the day. It was a successful exhibition, and gave great delight to the large audience present. Some of the pieces were very fine.

A Card.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 5, 1878.
To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:
The card in regard to the city dispensary in your Wednesday's issue was written under impressions received from reading a partial and incorrect account of the meeting of the board of directors. The board's report shows that the dispensary appropriation instead of being cut off, was continued, and that Hon. J. M. Ridenour, after an explanation by Dr. Walker, voted for the appropriation, thus siding in the continuance of the dispensary for another year.
Respectfully yours,
W. B. FLETCHER.

THE ABRAMS RELEASE.

The tragedy of September 12, 1868, again—The man who bought the gun—Governor Williams pardons William J. Abrams.

Day before yesterday Wm. J. Abrams was pardoned by Governor Williams. The pardon was signed and delivered to the secretary of state noon after noon, and shortly after the governor left the city for Evansville. To-day he is en route from Evansville to Vincennes, from which place he will go to his home at Wheatland to remain over Sunday, returning here Monday evening.

At this time, which time perhaps his excellency will give an explanation of his action, as there is much curiosity to know what influence was brought upon him to produce this result. Abrams will be released at once and it may be that he will bring Mrs. Clem to justice and fasten guilt upon others who have hitherto escaped suspicion. The jury in the trial of William J. Abrams as an accomplice of Mrs. Clem and others in the murder of Jacob Young and wife at Cold Spring, on White river, northwest of this city, September 12, 1868, returned a verdict of guilty on the 16th of September in the following year, but with this petition for mercy.

INDIANAPOLIS, September 18, 1868. We, the undersigned jurymen in the case of the state vs. Wm. J. Abrams, having in the discharge of our duty and under the solemnity of our oath, found the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree, yet believing that the crime committed by him was the result of wicked influences surrounding him and not the result of a cold heart, we would respectfully ask the governor to commute his sentence to ten years' imprisonment.

JAMES H. TRIMMAN, foreman, and eleven other jurymen.

Abrams heard the verdict with great composure. His counsel submitted a motion for a new trial, which was overruled as was also a motion in arrest of judgment. The judge asked Abrams if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed on him. He arose and said:

I believe you have done your duty, but I am as innocent as any man that lives. The circumstances that look suspicious, but I believe the time will come when everything will be fully explained.

The judge then pronounced sentence upon him, and he was taken to the state prison for life.

If the prayer of the jury had been granted, Abrams' time would have expired more than a month ago, the credits by remission of days cutting down the sentence nearly two years. The application for his pardon has been made to every governor since his conviction, and it is believed that Gov. Hendricks was inclined to release him, but left the matter to his successor. It is said that Abrams will tell all he knows of the tragedy, and get his release upon promising to that effect, but those who know the man and how close-mouthed he has always been, will never believe that.

Another report is that he was merely a cat-paw, and though he bought the gun, actually knew nothing of the terrible purpose to which it was to be put, and that in interviews with Governor Williams, who has visited him in the hopes that he might break his stubborn silence upon promising a release in case he made a clean breast of it.

Miss Laura Ream is credited with obtaining the pardon of Abrams. It is said she has been working on the case for several years, and at last has the satisfaction of knowing that success has crowned her efforts.

He comes home an afflicted man. His child is dead, and his wife having got a divorce, has married again.

YESTERDAY'S FIRE. An Exploding Cracker Responsible for $15,000 Damages.

A disastrous fire, which is supposed to have originated from a fire cracker, wrought much damage to the two rows of three-story tenement houses on the corner of Home and College avenues, and fronting on these two streets. The fire occurred yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, and owing to a combination of unforeseen circumstances, it was almost half an hour after the flames were discovered before a stream of water was played upon the blaze. In that interval the fire had time to get to its most perfect work, and the result was that the two rows were badly gutted, and all the occupants suffered more or less. The buildings comprise numbers 88, 94 and 96 College avenue and 375, 377 and 379 Home avenue, and belong to the estate of the late Joseph Poole of Attica, Indiana. Mr. W. E. Mick, agent, estimates the loss at $12,000—$7,000 on the College avenue and $5,000 on the Home avenue row. They are insured respectively for $2,000 and $3,000 for the benefit of the mortgagee, the Connecticut Mutual life insurance company of Hartford.

Wales, No. 88, loss about $500; A. J. Agnew, No. 90, $800 to $1,000; C. O. Brook, who owns rooms with Mr. Agnew, $200 on books and paintings. Mrs. V. T. Black, No. 94, $200; A. J. Tarlton, No. 95, $100; W. H. Otis, No. 375, $1,200; James Schomover, No. 375, $490. These are losses by damage to furniture and household goods by water and removal, and all are uninsured except Mr. Agnew, who is protected by a policy in the Phoenix, of Hartford, No. 377 was vacant. A son of Mrs. Wales also loses a buggy valued at $100. The fire started in a stable in the rear of No. 88, and as there was no fire about the premises it is supposed that a fire cracker, thrown by some boys, is the responsible agent of the destruction.

The Mayor's Court To-Day. The station house slate for last night contained thirty-seven names, the names of those arrested in this city on the 1024 anniversary of the declaration of independence of these United States; The crimes ranked from assault and battery with intent to kill to simple drunk. Officer Marshall arrested William Edwards at the depot on suspicion of stealing a lady's satchel, but the charge would not stick, and he was fined for drunkenness. Edwards had been out of the Michigan penitentiary, but a few weeks, and was looked upon as a person liable to take a satchel if he got a chance.

William A. Johnson, said to be a well known body man, living at the city hall, came to town yesterday, and to keep him out of mischief officers Case and Schmidt ran him in. Nothing was alleged against him and he suffered a fine for drunkenness.

One of the incidents at the Southern park yesterday was an assault by Archer A. Wiles upon his wife. He knocked her down and stepped on the prostrate body. Deputy marshal Loez arrested him, and he will have a trial Tuesday next.

Fred Reed and Sidney Procket, two lively individuals who rioted at the southern park, and drew revolvers on the officers when arrested, were assessed appropriate fines.

The rest of the grid was ground out at a lively rate, a number of the fines and pleas being thrown into the hopper at long range.

The Peruvian Sandwich. The following is from a Fourth-of-July pilgrim returned from a trip on the Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago railroad: "The honest, easy-going, nutritious and unpretentious sandwich sells for five cents and the country over. At Peru trains stay five minutes for refreshments. A lunch fiend has settled at the station. Speculation bigger than a weaver's beam fills both his eyes. He taketh the unwary traveler on the fly, charging ten cents for his sandwiches. They are curiously built. Naturally a customer looks for meat in a sandwich, but in the Peru pattern the meat is as carefully concealed as the jewel in a ten-cent prize package—as secure from observation as improper pills sent c. o. d. Once, a long time ago, a traveler found a slice of ham in a Peru sandwich. He did not eat it; it was too tough and precious for that; but he had it stitched into the right upper maxillary of the lunch fiend, and now his cheek endureth forever.

NEW BOOKS. "DOSIA."

The press says of it: "One of the brightest of the newly-risen stars of French literature is Henry Greville, as she chooses to designate herself. Dosia, her first novel, is an exquisite creation, pure and fresh as a rose, and will furnish the most delectable of fiction with a new sensation."—(Boston Transcript.)

"It is a clever, witty story, and does not pretend to be an instructive novel. Henry Greville is a woman who writes French novels that are pure and this best makes her out from the crowd of French novelists, male and female."—(Chicago Post.)

"The book is remarkable for the absence of that meretricious and painfully visible logic which makes French fiction rather melancholy."—(New York Herald.)
